Deep in the woods of Tennessee in 1835, an unparalleled encounter occurs. David Patten unwittingly opens a new facet of the future mystery of Sasquatch.

His story will lend new credence to the existence of Bigfoot and send one young man on a journey of a lifetime.

Spencer James joins a group of scientists in their quest to find the legendary Bigfoot in the Pacific Northwest. Egos, deception, and conflicting agendas are brought into a singular effort by a millionaire consumed with revenge and hate. Spencer becomes the moral compass, standing alone in a forest of scientific amorality. Despite their technology the truth becomes more allusive, challenging their intent and ethics, questioning the morality of their methods and the very reason for the hunt.

A man, a myth and the obsession to know the truth will reveal a story that will forever change the way you think about Bigfoot.
